How do I get a Maryland driver's licenses?

To get a Maryland driver's license you must be at least 16-years-old. You do not need a social security number to get a driver's license. Take the following documentation to the Motor Vehicle Administration office nearest you:

- your passport
- your Form I-94 card
- your current Form I-20 (and any previous I-20s you may have)
- your driver's license from your country or international license, if you have one
- proof of your Maryland address (for example, mail which shows your address, such as a telephone bill, electric bill, credit card bill, or a copy of your lease, etc.)
- another form of identification with your signature on it (for example, a picture ID, canceled check, credit card)

All documents must be in the same name as your immigration documents; do not use nicknames for leases, utility bills, or other billing statements.

At the Motor Vehicle Administration, you will take a 20-question, multiple choice, written test in order for you obtain a Learner's Permit. The written test is available in various languages. A vision test, a road/driving test, and a three-hour drug & alcohol clas is needed as well. The fee for a Maryland Learner's Permit is $45.00 and you must provide your own car/test vehicle to be used during the road test.

What do I do if I am applying for a driver's license for the first time?

If you do not already have a driver's license from your home country, you must first complete a Maryland approved driver education course of no less than 30 hours of classroom instruction and 6 hours of behind-the-wheel driver training. After completing this course, you will receive a certificate. You must then pass a written test and obtain a learner's permit. If you are 18 or older, you must also complete a three-hour drug and alcohol course. For questions regarding applying for a driver's license for the first time,
