

What is the pledge? What does the pledge involve?

A graduation rite of passage, involving graduating students in a computing field acknowledging intellectual and ethical responsibilities as they enter the computing profession.

Students take the Pledge as a graduation requirement and receive a certificate and a digital token as a reminder of their responsibilities as individuals and as a professional Engineer; there are no fees, grades, or credit responsibilities associated with the ceremony.

Membership is open to students who are participating in a computing related field at a Towson University institution (Towson University).
